

Federal Ministry of Transport confirms comprehensive amendment to learner driver training

14.10.2024

Cologne, October 14, 2024 - 123fahrschule SE (ISIN: DE000A2P4HL9; ticker symbol: 123F, primary market Düsseldorf Stock Exchange), a digitally driven driving school chain in Germany with a focus on e-learning, announces significant progress in the amendment of learner driver training.

At today's information event in Bonn, the Federal Ministry of Transport provided a comprehensive insight into the extensive amendment to learner driver training. In particular, the introduction of online theory, use of the simulator for driving skills, but also many other important changes will significantly change and improve driving school training at the beginning of 2026.

These changes will enable 123fahrschule to implement its ideas of modern and up-to-date driving license training. In addition, these changes will lead to a significant cost reduction in the vehicle fleet and considerably increase the use and sales of driving simulators. The company anticipates considerable improvements in efficiency throughout the entire training process. In conjunction with the strategy presented in August to concentrate on large cities, the company expects 123fahrschule's regional market share to increase significantly in the medium term. The Federal Ministry of Transport has promised to provide extensive detailed information for the public in the near future.

The Management Board and management are currently evaluating the new information received and will report to interested investors at a round table organized by Nuways on 21 October on the expected impact on 123fahrschule's strategy, sales and earnings. Interested investors can register here.
